Should the Men Be Paid for Drills

THE proposition that the officers and men of the National Guard should be paid for attending drills has many advocates and also many officers who condemn the idea. The argument of each side seems to be conclusive to itself. Those opposed claim that such a course will undermine the very existence of the fundamental principle of the organized militia, which has always been maintained without such financial assistance, and has always felt a pride in the fact that the officers and men were such from pure patriotism, and not from any sordid motives. It smacks entirely too much of the Regular Army, say the opponents to the proposition. And that is where we think the argument is lame. In the name of Mars! can any part of the organized militia smack too much of the Army and Army methods? These same officers who are so strongly opposed to having the men paid are the same who constantly grumble about the decadence of the personnel of the Guard, that is what they can enlist, and they also are alarmed over the trouble to keep their ranks up even to the lawful minimum.

They fail to consider that things are different from the old days when the organized militia of the several States and Territories were little better than armed and equipped social organizations. They also fail to take into consideration that an officer and an enlisted man of the organized militia of to-day is required to be very close in knowledge of duties to the professional soldier of the Regular Army. Now, if the officers and men of the Army are entitled to pay for their services, why should not the officers and men, in like degree, of the organized militia, be compensated for the time, the labor, and the zeal which they bestow upon their elective calling.

The Government now extends its paternal hand over these soldiers of the organized militia. For many years Uncle Sam paid no attention to them, because he believed that the only real soldiers could be found within his own immediate school room, following the excellent curriculum laid down by himself as schoolmaster. With the awakening to the fact that a valuable reserve could be had in these State troops, the schoolmaster reached out his hand and gathered them partially into the fold. He couldn't take them all under the cover of his school rooms, but he is trying hard to make them equal to the more favored pupils, and without extending to them the same privileges.

Five years ago an officer of the organized State forces who knew anything of military life beyond a somewhat crude acquaintance with the Drill Regulations, was a rarity. To-day each officer must bone up on subjects which he may have heard of in an indefinite way, but which he is now required to know and have the ability to apply. It is the same, in lessening degrees, with the non-commissioned officers and the privates. Each must be something of a modern soldier, and to be a soldier worthy of the name in these days, means an educated, self reliant man, who not only knows how to execute present arms and do fours right, but who can think and act for himself in an emergency.

Colonel Thomas Allen Glenn, Aide-de-Camp on the Staff of the Commander-in-Chief, in the Full Dress Uniform as Captain of the Second Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry.

It is preposterous to believe that men will in any great numbers give their time and pay out actual money from their own pockets for the privilege of being a modern soldier. The exactions of the training are entirely too great; the expense to the officers of playing soldier is in many cases prohibitive.

If the men were paid at least $1.00 for each drill attended and fined fifty cents for each drill missed, making a total loss of $1.50, it is certain that instead of a beggarly section, only big enough for a sergeant to command, our drill floors would contain companies of twenty-four files on each drill night. The officers should be given a stated sum per annum, say $75.00, which would aid them to maintain their uniforms and equipments, and, of more importance, to purchase text books upon the profession of arms.

Manoeuveres

It seems to be a settled policy of the War Department to hold combined manœuvres of the Army and the National Guard. The experiences of the assemblage of such troops at Fort Riley and West Point, Kentucky, last year, were such that Army officials believe most excellent results will accrue by a continuation. So far Pennsylvania has taken no part in these combined manœuvres, although this State was about the first to have contingents of the Army encamp with its troops. A number of the officers of the National Guard of Pennsylvania are anxious to be associated with the officers and men of the Army, and it is proposed that the camp, which this summer, by rotation, should be by division, be held at St. Louis, where there will a large number of Regulars encamped, and where the manœuvres will be had upon a large scale. Of course the main thought in advocating St. Louis, is the fact that the great World's Fair will be in progress at the time.

There is much to be said upon both sides of this question. It is doubtful if the attractions of the exhibition would not be too strong for our soldiers who would prefer gazing upon the wonders therein, rather than be hiking around the country under all the conditions of actual war.

On the other hand, the fact that the Guard would go to St. Louis would at once stimulate enlistments and every company would carry its maximum strength to the field of action. The visit to St. Louis would also be valuable from an educational standpoint, exclusive of the betterment derived from association with the professional soldiers.

The fact that the terrain up in the northeast part of Pennsylvania has been examined within the past few days by an officer of the Army may be significant of manœuvres being held in this State, Brigadier General Gobin is said to have recommended the ground as thoroughly adaptable for the purpose of playing the game of war, and the report upon the ground is now anxiously looked for.

Thirteenth Regiment

Captain Ezra H. Ripple, Jr. commands the same company ("D") of the Thirteenth Regiment that his father, Colonel Ripple, Assistant Adjutant General, commanded twenty-five years ago.

The State Rifle Association of Pennsylvania

The annual meeting of the State Rifle Association was held at First Brigade Headquarters on the afternoon of January 19th, when some very important matters were discussed, principally the formation of Rifle Clubs throughout the State composed of able-bodied citizens between the ages of eighteen and forty-five, and ex-members of the Guard. The members of these clubs will be furnished with the use of rifles and ammunition at a nominal cost. These clubs are to be attached to the State Association and the State Associations under control of a National organization.

It is expected that this system when once in operation, will do away with the irresponsible independent military bodies, and the Rifle Associations thus formed throughout the United States will practically constitute the unorganized militia of the United States.

The new directors elected for the ensuing year comprise Major General Charles Miller, Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart, General J. P. S. Gobin, General John W. Schall, General John A. Wiley, Col. Frank K. Patterson, Colonel E. V. D. Selden, Major D. S. B. Chew, Dr. C. B. Penrose, D. Moreau Barringer, Esq., Henry Reed Hatfield, Esq., Colonel B. C. Tilghman, Jr., Quartermaster Hugh Craig, Jr., Frank B. Bower, Hon. J. Willis Martin, Captain E. C. Goddard, Major Caldwell K. Biddle, and Lieut. J. P. Wood.

Lieut. C. M. Seaman, United States Artillery Corps, Formerly Sergeant Company "E," Fourth Infantry, Located at Hamburg, Pa., Who Through His Own Efforts Secured a Commission in the Regular Establishment.

The meeting was adjourned until March 13th, when it is expected General Stewart will be prevailed upon to accept the presidency of the Asscciation.

The State Rifle Association was organized in 1880 for the purpose of promoting Rifle Practice in the National Guard of Pennsylvania. The life membership was $25 and for ordinary membership $2 per year, and for active members of the National Guard, connected with company, battery or troop, $1 per annum.

The first object of the Association was to secure a suitable ground in the vicinity of Philadelphia for a rifle range.

After a time, a site was secured in the northeastern section of the city, on the river front and officially known as the Hartranft Range. This, however, proved very unsatisfactory, owing to the dangerous back stops, and frequently the old .50 calibre bullets would strike the sailing craft on the river.

Col. Jno. C. W. Frismuth, Formerly 1st Brigade Staff, and one of the Charter Members of the State Rifle Association of Penna.

Colonel John C. W. Frismuth

One of the best known and popular ex-officers of the Guard is Colonel John C. W. Frismuth. When quite a young man, he was commissioned First Lieutenant of Company "L" of the First Regiment P. M., 1862; Pennsylvania Volunteers, 1862-3; Second Lieutenant Starr's Battery in 1863. He was appointed Major and Commissary on the Staff of Brigadier General George Ross Snowden, First Brigade, N. G. P., Sept 9, 1878, leaving the service April 28, 1881.

Colonel Frismuth has always been an enthusiastic rifleman and it was largely through his influence that the State Association was organized from members of the Riverton Gun Club.

The Colonel is one of the oldest members of the Union League and very active in its affairs; he is also a Director of the oldest bank in the City of Philadelphia, the National Bank of Northern Liberties, and is at the head of a business, Frismuth Bro. & Co., which is conceded to be the oldest in the United States, having a continuous existence of ninety-six years, and at the present is in the hands of the fourth generation of the family.

Major Jos. H. Burroughs

The subject of our sketch, Major Joseph H. Burroughs, a charter member of the State Association, is one of the originators of Rifle Practice in Pennsylvania. The first marksman's decoration that was ever issued in the First Brigade, was received by him in 1879, with a score of forty-seven points out of a possible fifty at two and five hundred yards.

Major Burroughs spent much time and money to further the interest of this important practice and he frequently took members of his company down the "Neck" on improvised ranges and instructed them in the work.

Major Burroughs enlisted in Company "D" of the First Regiment Infantry, May 6th, 1872; he was elected Second Lieutenant in the same company on March 20, 1876; and was elected Captain, March 31, 1879. He was appointed Major and Judge Advocate on the Staff of Brigadier General George R. Snowden, First Brigade, N. G. P., on April 15, 1880, and after nearly ten years service to the state, he retired on July 18, 1887.

Major Burroughs took quite an active part in the Pittsburgh and Susquehanna Riots. He was specially complimented by his superiors for the able manner in which he received and handled a large issue of ammunition from the Frankford Arsenal and made a prompt and careful distribution of the same in the Old City Armory, prior to the departure of the troops. It was feared at that time, that the rioters would not allow the ammunition to be unloaded from one of the Government tugs. Through a little strategy the Major outwitted the riotous mobs and landed the ammunition safely in the Armory.

The Spring Inspections

IN a few days the Spring Inspection of the National Guard of Pennsylvana will be on, and company commanders will be hustling to make a good showing. Each year the requirements are advanced, causing an increase in the work demanded from the inspectors and also from the officers and men of the Guard. The orders this year lay it down very clearly that inefficient officers, both commissioned and non-commissioned, will be singled out and, for the good of the service, will be weeded out. This is a move in the right direction. There are too many incompetents holding commissions, their unfitness being clearly reflected in the lack of knowledge of duties displayed by the non-coms when the latter are quizzed by the inspectors. This quizzing of officers and non-coms is a very essential part of the inspection, but it is difficult to see how an inspector is going to find time to thoroughly inspect the company and also put the officers through an examination as to their knowledge of advance and rear guard and out-post duty. To properly inspect a company of infantry in all the particulars laid down in orders, requires three full hours, and that amount of time uses up all of an evening.

In the first Brigade the inspection of the quartermaster's stores will be more rigid than heretofore. The inspector will not permit the stores to be displayed in bulk, but the equipments of each man must be assembled in separate piles, which will be such that they may be readily and easily examined and their condition ascertained,

NOTES

Colonel John S. Muckle visited Governor Pennypacker on Jan. 6th and seriously discussed with the Commander-in-Chief, the feasibility of organizing either an Engineer Battalion or a Signal Corps. Col. Muckle is greatly interested in both these branches and would favorably consider being assigned as Chief of the organization.

It is stated that should Governor Pennypacker decide to go on the Supreme Bench and Lieutenant Governor Brown become Commander-in-Chief, there is little likelihood of any changes being made on the Governor's Staff, with possibly one exception. Colonel H. P. Bope, of Pittsburgh, is being urged for a position as Aide-de-Camp.

The meeting of the Armory Commission appointed by Colonel Louis A. Watres, President of the State National Guard Association, held its first meeting at the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia, Pa., on Wednesday, January 13th.

The armory question was seriously discussed and it is expected that the Committee will co-operate with General Stewart, who has already formulated a plan on this most important matter.

Captain Peter Lyle Weaver, Military Correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer, is seriously ill and it is expected that in the very near future he will be obliged to take a sea voyage and three or four months stay in the tropics.

Captain Weaver is well known throughout military circles and for many years has been identified with the Guard.

We earnestly hope that Captain Weaver will be much benefited by the trip and in six months time be restored to his old time vigor.

Colonel Wendell P. Bowman, of the First Infantry, can be seen nightly at the Armory, indefatigable in his work of preparing his several companies for the Spring inspection. There is no detail too small for the Colonel to observe, and the preliminary inspections which he is conducting are really more severe than that exacted by the Brigade Inspector.

Is there any wonder then that the First is always superior in its rating?

It is believed among many of the close observers that General Morrell will return to the Guard.

The old land marks of the Duquesne Greys are gradually disappearing.

After a long, active and honorable career, Lieutenant Colonel J. Conrad Kay leaves the service of the State. Pressure of business is given as the reason of his retirement.

Colonel Kay entered the Duquesne Greys thirty years ago, enlisting as a private in Company "G." His sterling worth was soon recognized and he won the shoulder straps of a lieutenant in Company "A."

Subsequently he was commissioned Captain, Major and Lieutenant Colonel.

There is likely to be a spirited contest in the Eighteenth to fill this vacancy. Among those prominently mentioned for the position are Major McNary and Captain Kearns. It is also intimated by some of the company officers, that something unexpected is likely to happen in the way of a "dark horse."

It is said that Major Kelso Cassatt, formerly of the U. S. Army, has expressed a desire to connect himself with the National Guard of Pennsylvania as a Departmental officer.

Sheridan Troop

Two important events have occurred in the Sheridan Troop circles during the past month.

On the last evening of the year just closed, the Sheridan Troop Veteran Association, consisting of those who served with the Troop in the Spanish-American War, held its fifth annual reunion and banquet in Tyrone. There were a quarter of a hundred people present, and the evening, until close on to the advent of the new year, was very pleasantly spent around the banquet table, after a small amount of business was transacted and officers for the new year elected as follows: President, Captain, L. F. Crawford; Vice President, Dr. J. L. Brubaker; Secretary, First Lieut. H. S. Fleck; Treasurer, Corporal H. C. Meyers; Historian, Sergt. J. S. Fleck; Advisory Board, Troopers George W. Owens, William Haine, John H. Grazier.

On Saturday evening, January 9th, fifty of the now active Troopers assembled at the Armory in Tyrone and feasted on roast goat. When in the coal regions, during the strike of 1902, the Troop received several goats, one of which was a "Nannie" that gave birth to two kids, some time after arriving at the home of the Troop.

One of these was slaughtered and dressed, thirty pounds. Various other articles were added, all of which provided a palatable menu, and the boys had a big time, munching down through the bill-of-fare, from goat to cigars, and then an hour was spent transacting business relating to Troop affairs.

There was more than novelty in the feast, for the experiment proved that the meat of kid is even superior to lamb.

Dr. B. J. Cobleigh

The subject of our sketch is a well known physician and representative of Kingston, Luzerne Co., and greatly interested in the welfare of the National Guard of Pennsylvania. He is also prominently mentioned as a Congressional candidate.

Dr. Cobleigh is a product of the anthracite coal regions of whom every resident of Luzerne County has a right to feel proud.

He was born and raised in this Valley. His early education was received in the common schools and at Wyoming Seminary, and later he graduated at the State Normal School at Bloomsburg. Subsequently, he entered the Medical Department of the Jefferson College in Philadelphia, graduating from this institution in 1884.

He is an eye specialist and is considered by his fellow practitioners as an expert in this particular line.

He has attained a high standing in the profession, not only in his own locality but throughout the State.

He married a daughter of the late Daniel Edwards, President of the Kingston Coal Company, and as the burden of conducting the business of this big concern became too heavy on account of the declining years of Mr. Edwards, the services of the doctor were called upon and as Assistant Manager, the principal work of conducting the mining affairs was placed in his hands.

The same qualities and business tact that made Dr. Cobleigh a success as a physician made him a successful business man.

He comes in daily contact with the miners and other employees about the mines, and that he was uniformly courteous and fair to those under him, was best evidenced by the fact that every present and past employee of the Kingston Coal Company holds the doctor as a personal friend who is ever ready to greet them cordially.

Several years ago, Dr. Cobleigh was offered the captaincy of Company "E," Ninth Regiment, but just at that time he was preparing for an extended trip abroad, and was unable to accept this honor, but it is not unlikely that he will yet become a wearer of the shoulder straps in the N. G. P.

THE STATE RIFLE ASSOCIATION OF PENN.

In 1890 it was finally decided to abandon the range and for a time the Association became non-active.

Major D. S. B. Chew, Ordnance Officer of the First Brigade; Quartermaster Hugh Craig, Jr., First Troop, and several other prominent gentlemen, realizing the necessity for better facilities in this department concluded to reorganize the Association and, if possible, secure the original charter. This was readily accomplished and to-day the organization is composed of the best active material in the Guard.

Several of the old charter members are still affiliated with the body and have given much assistance towards its reorganization. They are: General George Ross Snowden, General Joseph W. Latta, Col. George H. North, Colonel Silas W. Pettit, Colonel John C. W. Frismuth, Major Jos. H. Burroughs, and Quartermaster Hugh Craig, Jr. Lieut. J. Franklin McFadden and John Houston Merrill, Esq. are also active members of the Association.

It is proposed when the sub-divisions are thoroughly organized, to keep complete records of the season's work, and decorations will be issued yearly in the same manner as those given the active militia.
